

Tips on Successful Information Searches

Text:

- In general, text searches respond more quickly than map searches.
- Try identifying your research topics with two factors (such as last name and source). Using more factors can require more computer analysis time.

Maps:

- For best results, use a fast modem. The system will work with a slower modem, but be prepared to wait a few moments between each selection.
- For best results, use this system during off-peak Internet use times (first thing in the morning and late afternoons).

Water Right Research Using the Internet

Find Information About Idaho
Water Rights Using Either Text or Maps.

With the IDWR Water Rights Search Pages, you can find your water rights using either text or maps:

- Go to the IDWR Home Page
<http://www.idwr.state.id.us>

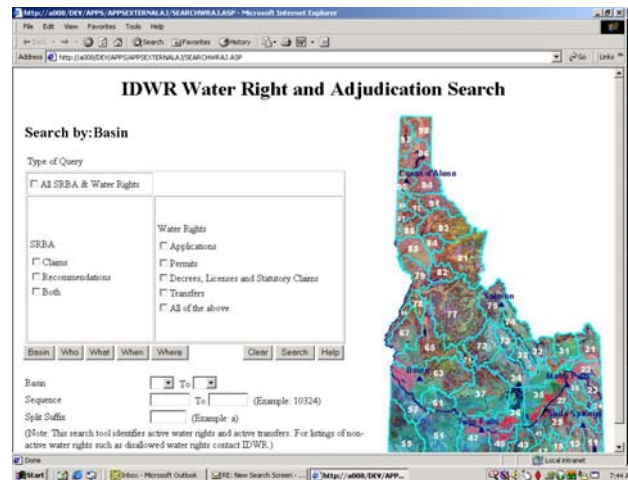

Under the “Top Picks” click:

- Adjudication & Water Rights Search (text-based) or
- Adjudication & Water Rights Search (map-based)

Research Using Text

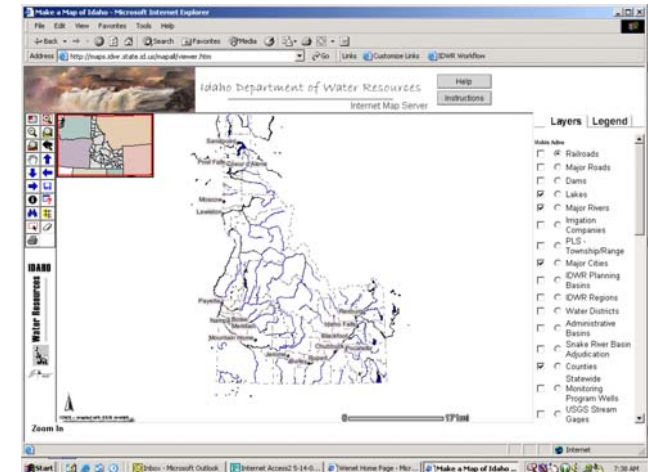

- Using text, start with this page:

- Enter known information, click Search and see the results.
- You can more narrowly focus your search by combining basin, when or what, etc., if you don't know the water right number (basin, sequence, suffix). More specifics slightly increases search time, but narrows the number of records returned.
- Allow some time for the search to take place. The database includes more than 200,000 different water rights.
- For more instructions, click Help

Research Using Maps

- Using maps, start with this page:

- Review the tools on the upper left of the screen if you are not familiar with them, by hovering the cursor over the tool or by clicking on help.
- First, use the zoom tool  to enlarge your search area.
- This tool can be used multiple times to zoom into your area.
- Use the pan tool  to adjust the screen location.
